

Virginia Center for the Humanities

Fall Colloquia, 1989

October/November programs begin at 12:30 p.m.

December program begins at 4:00 p.m.

2110 Ivy Road (across from Foods of All Nations)

Please bring a brown bag lunch.

- October 10                      Native Tribal Relations in Virginia, 1607: Establishing an Historical Context for Jamestown
Jeffrey Hantman
Assistant Professor of Anthropology
University of Virginia
- October 31                      Changing Perspectives on the Virginia Landscape
Stephen Adams
Associate Professor of English
University of Minnesota, Duluth
- November 14                      Scenes from the High Desert: Julian Steward on Environment and Culture
Virginia Kerns
Associate Professor of Anthropology
College of William and Mary
- November 28                      What Should Be For Sale? Of Blood, Babies, and Baseball Players
Judith Andre
Associate Professor of Philosophy
Director of the Institute of Applied Ethics
Old Dominion University
- December 12                      The Philosopher in the Health Sciences Center: A Resident Alien?
Lawrence Hultgren
Professor of Philosophy
Virginia Wesleyan College

The Virginia Center for the Humanities supports scholarship that crosses academic boundaries, is significantly informed by social interests, and can contribute to public discourse and general understanding of the humanities. Center colloquia feature discussion of work in progress and allow ample time for questioning. Each session lasts approximately one hour and is open to the public.

The Virginia Center is an activity of the Virginia Foundation for the Humanities.