Magna Carta and the Evolution of Property Rights, Lecture by Professor James Ely, author and the Milton R. Underwood Professor of Law and Professor of History at Vanderbilt University doors open at 6:30; lecture 7-8pm

Magna Carta has long been recognized as the cornerstone of Anglo-American liberty, and is the basis for a number of constitutional doctrines protective of the rights of property owners. This lecture will explore the background of the "Great Charter" and will focus on the provisions of that document which pertain to property rights. It will also examine the impact of Magna Carta in shaping constitutional law in the early United States.

$8 adults; $6 seniors/military; $4 students.
