

What we do

Virginia Humanities offers programs and opportunities for Virginians to share their stories and learn from the experiences of others. Through community programs, festivals, grants, fellowships, websites, digital initiatives, publications, teacher institutes, radio programs, and podcasts we invite all Virginians to explore what makes us each unique and celebrate the humanity we all share.

Who we serve

Virginia Humanities serves all Virginians. Like the Commonwealth itself, we embrace people from a wide range of backgrounds, living in distinct regions, asking critical questions—and seeking to make meaning in their lives.

Why we do it

Virginia Humanities exists to create meaningful connections. Our programs explore our differences to help us find what we have in common. Connecting diverse Virginians through sharing, listening, and learning—we strive to build a stronger future for our Commonwealth.
