WHAT'S BACKSTORY?

BackStory is public radio's contemporary take on American history—a lively but civil conversation that listeners have been hoping for, a surprising exploration of ideas, events, and their continuing impact on us.

possible?

This isn't history the way you may remember it. BackStory delivers smart, deeply informed talk on such wide-ranging topics as the history of marriage, extreme weather, birthing, homeownership, alcohol, college sports, and the post office, among many others.

 GREAT PROGRAM IDEA*

Each week, world-class historians Peter Onuf, Ed Ayers, and Brian Balogh trade ideas with guest experts, debate each other, offer features that delve into the little-known past, and talk with [listeners who call in.] It all has the accessible, easy style of a stimulating chat with your brightest friends around the kitchen table.

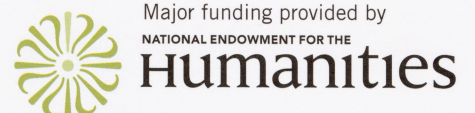

Me on the show?!

 NOTE TO SELF: pick up beer*

Join Brian, Ed, and Peter for fresh, inviting and intellectually exciting radio that connects the present and the past, sharing revealing, funny, or moving stories—the ever-unfolding drama of us.
